

Universal Edition revolutionises the worldwide music market: “scodo” goes online and enables composers worldwide to publish sheet music in a new way!

Composers are currently facing many challenges in the limited classical music market and have to assert themselves against both modern trends and old established ones. At the same time, they must take care of administrative necessities and rights management.

With scodo, Universal Edition has responded to this situation and is opening up the future of music: With this new publishing tool, the Viennese music publisher is offering all composers the opportunity to appear in its globally established catalogue between such renowned composers as Gustav Mahler, Arnold Schönberg, Pierre Boulez, and Arvo Pärt.

The new composers are provided with a new, easy-to-use and flexible web tool for the publication of their sheet music. With just a few clicks, music makers can publish a new work at any time, which can be obtained worldwide via the Universal Edition website. All sheet music published via scodo can not only be distributed printed but also digitally via UE now.

Universal Edition, the music publisher with a success story spanning more than 100 years, is thus keeping its finger on the pulse of the time and offers the entire range of modern music distribution. With scodo, a long-standing demand on the music market is now being met. The publishing tool sets a milestone for music publishing with the help of digitalisation.

Universal Edition was founded in 1901 and is one of the largest and most traditional music publishers in Austria. It has been distributing its sheet music for more than 100 years, including music for beginners as well as professional players of the best orchestras and houses worldwide. The headquarter is located in the Vienna Musikverein.

The publishing programme currently includes over 32,000 titles as well as the marketing and support of over 1,000 composers, including Gustav Mahler, Béla Bartók, Leoš Janáček, Arnold Schönberg, Anton Webern, Alban Berg, Kurt Weill, Arvo Pärt, Pierre Boulez, Friedrich Cerha, and Wolfgang Rihm. The product range contains concert and stage works as well as teaching and performance literature, book series, film music, licenses, and Urtext editions.

With scodo and UE now, Universal Edition provides composers and musicians worldwide with new, modern forms of publishing and distributing sheet music.
